Sympathetic

The professor stepped to the edge of the platform and asked, "If there are any dumb-bells present, please stand up."

There was a lengthy pause, then a solitary freshman arose.

"So you consider yourself a dumb-bell, do you?" asked the professor.

Record Year For MDAC in 1963

TORONTO—The March for Muscular Dystrophy in Canada set another record in 1963.

Arthur Minden, QC, president of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada, announced today that MDAC's income reached an unprecedented $447,151.96 last year. This was a 10.4 per cent increase over the $405,130.76 raised by the national voluntary health agency in 1962.

"It is one of the largest annual increases we have ever known," Mr. Minden said. "It means Canadians are becoming increasingly aware of the need to find a cure for muscular dystrophy quickly, before it destroys any more of our children's lives."

MDAC was founded ten years ago to raise money for research on muscular dystrophy, a complex of diseases which wastes the voluntary muscles and leads to premature death. There are an estimated 20,000 victims in Canada, most of them children. So far, MDAC has raised more than $3,000,000 in its efforts to discover the cause of MD, and a treatment or cure for it, through medical research.

The largest increases in MDAC's income last year came from Nova Scotia (up 105.05 per cent); British Columbia (up 84.98 per cent); New Brunswick (up 46.16 per cent) and Quebec (up 42.67 per cent).

"The growth in response to our appeal came from all across the country," Mr. Minden said. "Not only did more people everywhere give more money, but more volunteers everywhere worked harder than ever." During MDAC campaign week last November, thousands of Canadian fire-fighters, scores of service clubs and youth organizations and untold numbers of other volunteers knocked on doors, placed canisters, held tag days and sponsored other events, to help put the Association's drive over the top. The fire-fighters, who spearheaded the drive in most communities, have officially associated themselves with the MD cause.

Throughout the year, Gus Ryder, Don Messer, "Boon Boom" Geoffron and other leading figures in the worlds of sport and entertainment helped to publicize MD work. Public response broke records even though national coverage planned for the campaign in late November was eclipsed by the tragic death of President Kennedy who was himself connected with MD work in the United States.

Some 80 per cent of the funds raised by MDAC last year will find their way into university laboratories and medical centres through out Canada, to speed the progress of research into the mysteries of MD.

"We must not let last year's success make us complacent," Mr. Minden warned. "The funds available for MD research are still not growing as rapidly as the demand for them. And the demand will grow even more rapidly as science draws closer to cure."

Report From Parliament Hill

(Lawrence E. Kindt, M.P.)

March 19, 1964.

Last week Parliament suffered a sudden and tragic loss in the untimely (only 46) death of Jack Garland, Minister of National Revenue. Mr. Garland, who had represented North Bay since 1960, was certainly one of the three or four most popular members in the House of Commons — I doubt if he had an enemy in the world.

There is little doubt that Mr. Garland literally died in the performance of his duties as he was an extremely hard working and conscientious minister; the strain of office undoubtedly was one of the principal causes of his fatal heart attack. These tragedies are a great loss to the person in question only an hour before the fatal event. In Mr. Garland's death a great loss has been suffered by his family, his government, Parliament, his constituency and the country at large.

Since there was so little in Mr. Gordon's recent budget, everyone around Parliament Hill is wondering why the government introduced this budget at such an early date (the earliest on record). Speculation is that the government wished to have the budget for the coming year presented to Parliament BEFORE the Federal-Provincial conference at the end of this month so that any financial demands by the provinces could be forestalled. The government would be in a position to tell the provinces that it had made up its budget for the coming year and that there was no more money available for them.

From time to time the public indeed have good cause to question some of the strange goings on in Parliament. Only two weeks before the budget was introduced the government flatly turned down an opposition motion to extend Family Allowances to students aged 16 and 17 who are still attending school. Only two weeks later, the government apparently changed its mind as this item was perhaps the principal item in the budget. The other main item in the budget is that part-time students will be allowed to deduct tuition fees in computing income for tax purposes.

The biggest disappointment in the budget was the fact that the government did not see fit to remove the 1 per cent tax on new building materials.

For some time Mr. Hays (Minister of Agriculture) has been under severe criticism in the Commons for his handling of the Department of Agriculture and in particular for not giving his full time to the job. On February 3rd last, the government passed an Order-in-Council (which was not made public) transferring a large number of Mr. Hays' duties to the Minister of Forestry, Mr. Sauve.

Mr. Sauve is a Montreal lawyer. These duties included the Farm Credit Corporation, ARDA, PFRA, and a number of other duties.

Then, for some reason or other, on February 20, another Order-in-Council was passed transferring all of these duties (except ARDA) back to Mr. Hays. This matter was recently brought to light in Parliament and a great deal of questioning resulted. Finally the prime minister announced that agricultural affairs in Canada would now be run by THREE ministers, the latest addition being the Hon. Mr. Sharpe, the Minister of Trade & Commerce, a Toronto businessman.

At the moment no one seems to know who is boss. Most of us hope that it won't be a case of 'too many cooks spoiling the broth'.

Albertans by the hundred helped build Labatt's multi-million dollar brewery which will set a standard of excellence in the brewing world. And Albertans by the thousand will benefit. In terms of dollars, the brewery will spend about $1.5 million every year within the borders of Alberta. Main product of the Labatt plant will be world prize winning Labatt's Pilsener, brewed to the original Ontario recipe. Albertans will be able to buy Labatt Velvet Cream Stout also at local prices.

of Commerce have had wide teaching experience in the subject field. They will be using both lecture and case study techniques in the sessions.

A descriptive brochure and application form can be obtained by writing to the Director, Department of Extension, University of Alberta, Edmonton; The Principal, Lethbridge Junior College, Drawer 422, Lethbridge, or The General Manager, Lethbridge Chamber of Commerce, 1283 - 3rd Ave. South,

Drive Theme $5,000,000 Labatt Brewery Adds To Alberta Economy

Western Canada's first 'straight-flow' brewery is now in production at Edmonton. Built by Labatt's Alberta Brewery Ltd. at a cost of $5,000,000, it is among the most modern in North America.

Although smaller, it is patterned after Labatt's new Montreal brewery, which pioneered one-floor brewing in Canada.

Initially the plant will have a capacity of 100,000 barrels per year. As a result of new design concepts embodied in the plant, capacity can be expanded four-fold without disrupting the brewing processes.

Located on the Calgary Trail, Edmonton, the plant occupies a 19-acre site. About one-third of the site is presently in use with the balance held for future expansion requirements.

All equipment and machinery incorporates the latest advances in brewing technology, according to E. E. McManus, vice-president and general manager of Labatt's Alberta Brewery Ltd.

One of Canada's oldest companies, Labatt's have served Albertans since the railway reached Alberta in 1885. Jack McNeill represented Labatt's in Alberta from 1928 and latterly they were represented by Alex McNeill, who is currently in a senior management position with Labatt's Alberta Brewery Ltd.

It is a far cry from that day to this. When Mr. Labatt became sole owner the brewery employed six men. Today, Labatt's employees are numbered in the thousands across Canada and Labatt's is one of the nation's largest brewers.

Employing Albertans

The greatest consideration is always given by Labatt's to hiring local personnel and ensuring that they undergo extensive training to ensure that everyone meets the rigid standards of qualification set by the company.

Supervising the training of locally-employed personnel for Labatt's Alberta Brewery were the general manager, Mr. McManus, himself a fully qualified brewmaster, and plant manager and head brewer William E. Pearson. That there are two qualified brewmasters at Labatt's Alberta Brewery is not surprising. The company has always followed a policy of schooling all their senior management people in brewing techniques.

Although Labatt's are a national organization each brewery is autonomous in its operation. As a result Labatt's are more able to participate, as good citizens, in local community affairs and to support local projects.

Buy Western

Not only are Labatt's adding to Alberta's economy as a new employer and investor in production facilities, but Labatt's have been, for many years, large purchasers of Western materials and grains.

More than $1,500,000 will be spent by the brewery annually. Among the items they require in volume are malted barley, bottles and cartons. To these are added the innumerable supplies required in the operation of the brewery.

Wherever possible local suppliers are used as a matter of policy. In the construction of the plant the services of more than 30 Alberta firms were called upon.

"Have Your Car Checked" New CHSC

"With modern vehicles becoming more complex and sensitive, the annual spring car-check campaign will urge drivers to have their vehicles checked by competent technicians," said John Atkinson, general chairman of the Canadian Highway Safety Council. Mr. Atkinson is manager for Canada Allstate Insurance Co., and resides in Toronto.

The campaign to urge proper maintenance of automobiles and trucks will be sponsored nationally by the Council, through its vehicle safety committee, through April and May. In the past, the campaign stressed "Check your car and truck". Now it uses the theme "Have your car and truck checked" in the belief that the modern driver is not familiar enough with his vehicle to check it thoroughly. "However," Mr. Atkinson adds, "the driver can still locate faults in lights, windows, wipers, brakes, horn, exhaust, mirrors and steering and have experienced service men repair them before they create an accident."

POWER SERVICE AND THE STORM

A special message from Calgary Power Ltd.

Calgary Power deeply regrets the hardships and inconvenience caused this past weekend by one of the most destructive ice storms experienced in our province in 30 years.

The unusual nature and severity of this major storm caused extensive and widespread damage to power transmission equipment.

This damage was due to the unusually heavy and clinging mixture of snow and rain, and to the critical temperature at the start of the storm. Had this temperature been a few degrees higher or lower, the damage would not have occurred.

This combination of circumstances caused a tremendous build-up of ice on our power lines. Although designed to withstand the worst WINTER conditions, many conductors broke under the strain of this spring ice build-up - experienced on only two other occasions over the past 30 years.

To reach and repair the damage, Calgary Power crews have labored around the clock, in some areas carrying equipment through snow drifts in excess of six feet. At Calgary Power we are deeply concerned about the hardships experienced by our customers, and assure them that everything humanly possible has been done to restore service in the stricken areas.

Worst Blizzard Since 1952

In one of the worst spring blizzards since 1952, the high winds piled huge snow drifts across roads, downed electric wires, disrupted telephone service, and generally created havoc throughout the Calgary and Lethbridge areas on Sunday, April 5th.

Many people holidaying at their homes in the Crows Nest Pass were storm bound in their return journey in various towns between here, Calgary and Lethbridge. Thanks to the R.C.N.P. and Highway Patrols all were sheltered and no casualties reported.

All great accomplishments are attained through co-operation.
